Another Accident at the North Tamarack Mine.

Two Miners Are Injured.

They commenced to drill an old hole that had powder in it—At the Theater Tonight.

A rumor was very prevalent about the city today that two miners had been blown to pieces by a blast in the North Tamarack mine and that several others had been severely injured. On investigating the facts of the case, it was found that the report was a gross exaggeration, although it has some foundation in the fact that two men were injured in a blast in that mine. The reporter was at the mine this noon and was given the following account of the accident:

"Two miners, William Hicks, a Cornishman, and Stephen Grabek, an Austrian, were at their usual work in No. 3 shaft and had started to drill in the bottom of an old hole which had been blasted the night before. Some powder had been left in the hole at the last charge which had not exploded and when the men commenced drilling the powder exploded and sent the rock and dirt flying in every direction. Grabek was hit by a rock on his left side and received other bruises and Hicks had both his hands filled with loose pieces of rock."

The accident might have been a great deal more serious if the hole had been high in the drift, but as the hole was down below the men the upper part of their bodies was out of the reach of the flying missiles. The accident occurred in the sixth level and about 10:30 this morning.

The wounded men were quickly removed to the Tamarack hospital where their injuries were dressed and where they now lie.

Mine Inspector Hall was at the mine this morning and investigated the case and also saw the men at the hospital.

"Hearts of New York."

This play, which has been such a metropolitan attraction, was presented at the Opera House last evening by the James H. Browne theatrical company, and to say that the large audience were pleased with the play, is putting it mildly. The large sale of reserved seats guaranteed a good house and the Red Jacket people again demonstrated that Mr. Browne and his company of artists can always depend on this city for good houses and that they will always be favorites here as long as the standard of excellence, shown in last evening's entertainment, is maintained. All the parts of the play were well taken, but particular mention may be made of Frank DeVeron, as Tom Cooper, Harry Richards, as George Benson, T. J. Langdon, as Abe Nathan, the Jewish pawnbroker, and Lida Richards, as Biddy Ronan, the Irish character. J. T. McEnery, the bowery tough, was excellent and W. H. Tabor, as Arkwright the detective, was also very good.

Between the acts, Harry B. Sutherland appeared and sang the latest popular song, "Only one girl in the world for me" and was required to respond to two hearty encores when he sang, "The American Girl is Good Enough for Me" and "She might Flirt with Some Other Fellow." His clear baritone voice was greatly admired. During the evening the popular Fifth Regiment band rendered some of their choicest selections and entertained the audience between acts in their usual first-class style.

Nearly Bruised.

Yesterday afternoon during the high wind storm, which prevailed a greater part of the day, Bert Foster, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, was thrown from a sleigh and severely injured. The boy was in the sleigh which carried the convent school children to and from the school, and the rig was almost at a standstill on Fifth street near the Star clothing house, when the delivery horse and sleigh belonging to Herman Miller, the hardware man, was coming up Oak street at a good speed and was unable to stop or turn out of the way for the convent sleigh. In turning the corner the delivery sleigh swung around and striking the convent sleigh, threw some of the boys out and Bert Foster was hurt. When Mr. Miller saw that the boy was injured, he picked him up and carried him to his home on Oak street and a physician was summoned. The boy was severely injured in the back, one rib is broken and his knee cap hurt, besides several other bruises about the body, and he will probably be laid up for some time.

Death of Mrs. O'Neil.

Mr. John D. Cuddihy is in receipt of a telegram from Colorado Springs, informing him of the death of Mrs. Ellen O'Neil, relict of Jerry O'Neil, who formerly lived on Sixth street, Red Jacket, adjoining the residence of Mr. Ruppe. The dispatch was sent by her son, Jerry O'Neil, who, with one brother, are the only members of the family remaining, from having been stricken down with that terrible disease, consumption. The late Mrs. O'Neil went to Colorado Springs with the hope of regaining her lost strength, but all efforts were in vain and she succumbed to the wasting disease. It is probable that the remains will be brought here for interment.

In trying to find out the true inwardness, which, however, we have not yet succeeded in doing, of a complaint lodged at this office today, we were informed by a trustworthy person that Grossman employed Sullivan to ascertain who his assailants were and was told at that time he would have to pay for Sullivan's trouble in doing so. We are informed this bargain was made in the presence of a lady who accompanied Mr. Grossman and who understood English well. The amount for which Sullivan settled his claim was paid in a lump and not in installments as was at first proposed, as Mr. Sullivan's attorney would not accept payment in that way. The News wishes to be correct and hence this statement.

Senator Ingalls Coming.

The fifth and last of the series of entertainments given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. will be given at the Red Jacket Opera House on Wednesday evening, March 18, when the great statesman, orator and lecturer, John J. Ingalls, ex-United States senator from Kansas, will deliver one of his famous lectures entitled, "Problems of the Nineteenth Century." The new date has been made on account of Mr. Ingalls having been too ill to fill his engagement here in December last. The advanced sale of seats already assures a good-sized audience and the hall will undoubtedly be crowded to hear this great man.

Thomas Draper, deputy sheriff and nightwatchman, of Laurium, arrested Joseph Daniels, the well-known proprietor of the "Fairy" stage line, on the charge of assault and battery, alleged to have been committed upon the person of one Dexter LaForest and to have taken place in the saloon of Charles LeFebvre, on Fifth street Red Jacket, some time during last week. Daniels pleaded not guilty when brought before his honor, Justice Kuhn, and asked a jury trial. The case has excited considerable interest and the trial took place this afternoon.

Microscopic Exhibition at Kearsarge.

A grand stereoscopic exhibition and lecture will be given at the Kearsarge school hall, on Thursday evening, February 27, by Mr. William Pollitt, of Kearsarge. Over 100 magnificent views from England, Scotland, Ireland, Turkey, Italy and the Holy Land will be shown, and these, with the lecture, should certainly make an interesting entertainment for all who attend. An admission fee of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children will be charged to defray expenses.

Picture Writing.

"My painting makes me powerful over others."
Thus it was that Hiramatha in his wisdom taught the people all the mysteries of painting. All the art of picture-writing. On the smooth bark of the birch tree, on the white skin of the reindeer, on the green spots of the village. —LONGFELLOW.

The world has outgrown this kind of picture-writing and the quaint materials referred to by the poet. But the art remains chastened, elevated and perfected, and is here represented in its most finished manner by Vic Herman.

An Old Chinese.
Above a gateway in a high park wall hung a rusty chain, and this being pulled caused a bell to give forth a sepulchral sound. A surprised gardener, after a long delay, let the carriage in, which tolled up through a tangled thicket of vegetation till it stopped before a handsome person. The rooms were of fine proportion, yet the sunlight streaming by the great windows and the glorious prospect of river and valley did not drive away a chilly feeling, which would have been more appropriate to visit to a mausoleum on a November evening. Up stairs there was a stately chamber with an old engraving on the wall representing the birth of the Due de Bordeaux, and on a gilded stand a faded photograph, signed, "Philippe Comte de Paris."

In one corner was a bairn of The Gazette de France, and while we were wondering why for months the wrappers of that respectable Royalty-organ had not been broken and why they had been brought of a bedroom, the guests wife of the garden, pointing to the dust laden baldaquin, croaked, "La lit-on madame la marquise est morte." Then we recognized the pre-arranged order of medicine, but on the parquet, and the thumped newspapers and all the rest. We fled from that haunted chateau down to the Loire, rolling toward Saumur through a sky of blue—Blackwood's Magazine.
